A New Psychology of Women: Gender, Culture, and Ethnicity By Hilary M. Lips

In this insightful, provocative text, Hilary Lips lively narrative focuses on diversity without losing sight that the world is an interdependent community and what happens anywhere is likely to be relevant to many of us. Sensitive to the limitations of her own cultural perspective--that of a feminist social psychologist, a middle-class white woman who grew up in Canada and now teaches and writes in the United States--Lips draws from scholarly research outside the U.S. to present a global perspective on the psychology of women. She creatively exposes readers to the role of culture in shaping women's experiences, knowledge, and understanding and includes multicultural beliefs and findings. Much of the detailed coverage stems from broader topics that include female male differences, how girls are socialized throughout childhood and adolescence, how early messages are translated into later behavior, how women are treated in the workplace, how being female affects physical and mental health, and how issues affecting women change as they transition to middle and old age. Each chapter includes a profile of a woman who helped shape psychology to illustrate the diverse perspectives that have constructed our understanding. Also included are learning activities, suggestions for making social change, discussion questions, key terms, and suggestions for additional reading and Web resources.

Titles of related interest also available from Waveland Press: Chrisler et al., Lectures on the Psychology of Women, Fourth Edition (ISBN 9781478602002) and Crawford-Unger, In Our Own Words: Writings from Women's Lives, Second Edition (ISBN 9781577664901).

Editorial Review

Review

"I am leaning toward using this as my primary text as it has the best balance of psychology, gender, and culture of any of the other texts I have seen." --Mattie Gabston, Indiana University East

"A comprehensive text with better coverage of issues of culture and ethnicity than any other." --Sarah Murnen, Kenyon College

"I very much like the new book. I have used previous editions for years. I particularly like the international and cross-cultural coverage." --Donna Castaneda, San Diego State University, Imperial Valley

From the Back Cover

"A wonderful global focus. I liked the learning activities, discussion questions, and Web resources." --MaryBeth Ahlum, Nebraska Wesleyan University

About the Author

Cheryl A. Rickabaugh received her B.A. in Psychology from California State University, Los Angeles in 1982 and her M.A. and Ph.D. from University of California, Riverside in 1989 in Social-Personality Psychology. Cheryl is currently an Associate Professor of Psychology and Department Chair at the University of Redlands and is also affiliated with the interdisciplinary Women's Studies Program at Redlands.
