Engaging with Bediuzzaman Said Nursi: A Model of Interfaith Dialogue By Ian S. Markham

Too often interfaith dialogue is generic and unfocused. Often it involves 'liberals' from each tradition coming together to criticize the 'conservatives' in their own traditions. This book provides a model for interfaith dialogue that challenges very directly the 'dialogue industry'. This book involves a Christian theologian in deep conversation with a Muslim theologian. Bediuzzaman Said Nursi (1877-1960) was born at the end of the Ottoman Empire and lived through the emergence of an aggressive secular state. He had to think through, in remarkably creative ways, the challenge of faith within a secular environment, the relationship of faith and politics, and the implications and challenge of diversity and difference. His entire project is captured in his magnum opus 'The Risale-i Nur'. In the first eight chapters of this book, we engage closely with the thought of Nursi and tease out insights that Christians can learn from and accommodate. Having established the method, the second section of the book examines the precise implications for the interfaith movement. The problem with the interfaith movement is that it is an act of western cultural imperialism - they are taking the individualist assumptions of modern America and imposing them on the conversation. The problems with John Hick's and Leonard Swidler's approach are exposed. Moving out from Islam, the book then demonstrates how the model of interfaith changes when Christians are in conversation with Hinduism in India. A new set of Dialogue Ten Commandments are suggested. The book concludes with an appeal for a commitment to include and reach the 'conservatives' in the major religious traditions.

Editorial Review

Review

'Markham offers a model that presents a way beyond the current discourse about the relative truth of major world religions. ... Markham's innovative work is a welcome serious attempt to engage with this influential Muslim theologian.' Islam and Christian-Muslim Relations 'All in all, I heartily recommend this simple yet profound book to all who wish to find an honest, sincere way to understand and cooperate with the religious other, or even those who just want to know what the whole 'dialogue industry' is all about.' Journal of Islamic Studies

Carolyn Treece:

As a college student exactly feel bored to reading. If their teacher questioned them to go to the library as well as to make summary for some guide, they are complained. Just tiny students that has reading's spirit or real their interest. They just do what the instructor want, like asked to go to the library. They go to there but nothing reading seriously. Any students feel that looking at is not important, boring and also can't see colorful images on there. Yeah, it is to become complicated. Book is very important in your case. As we know that on this age, many ways to get whatever we wish. Likewise word says, ways to reach Chinese's country. So , this Engaging with Bediuzzaman Said Nursi: A Model of Interfaith Dialogue can make you sense more interested to read.
