The Cabinet of Eros: Renaissance Mythological Painting and the Studiolo of Isabella d'Este By Stephen Campbell

The Renaissance studiolo was a space devoted in theory to private reading and contemplation, but at the Italian courts of the fifteenth century, it had become a space of luxury, as much devoted to displaying the taste and culture of its occupant as to studious withdrawal. The most famous studiolo of all was that of Isabella d'Este, marchioness of Mantua (1474–1539). A chief component of its decoration was a series of seven paintings by some of the most noteworthy artists of the time, including Andrea Mantegna, Pietro Perugino, Lorenzo Costa, and Correggio.

These paintings encapsulated the principles of an emerging Renaissance artistic genre—the mythological image. Using these paintings as an exemplary case, and drawing on other important examples made by Giorgione in Venice and by Titian and Michelangelo for the Duke of Ferrara, Stephen Campbell explores the function of the mythological image within a Renaissance culture of readers and collectors.

Editorial Review

Review

"Stephen J. Campbell's ambitious and commendable new book, The Cabinet of Eros, largely redeems both paintings and patron, through a mixture of broad contextualization—both physical and cultural—and close reading. . . . Unlike many previous commentators, Campbell takes Isabella's intellectual ambitions seriously."—Andrea Bolland, The Sixteenth Century Journal
